

IS there a PROBLEM WITH MILITARY involvement in schools?

Thursday 13 November 2014, 5pm - 7pm

Friends Meeting House, Euston Road, London NW1 2BJ

Increased military involvement in schools is a policy championed by the current UK government. This has meant funding the development of new cadet corps, fast-track training as teachers for former soldiers, and encouraging the adoption by schools of a military ethos.

The Peace Education Network invite teachers, parents, governors, and any others involved in school to critically reflect on your experiences as we explore the benefits, risks, problems, and concerns of military involvement in education.

This workshop will be facilitated by John Williams, Secondary RE Advisor for the Archdiocese of Westminster

It is essential to pre-book to attend this workshop.

Contact Matt to secure your free place

education@paxchristi.org.uk

0208 203 4884

WWW.PEACE-EDUCATION.ORG.UK